

I don't think that the Indiana no-call law should be changed to include businesses that you already have a relationship with. I don't think that credit card companies that I currently use should be able to call me trying to sell me other products or services, as well as banks.